

Dear Farmingdale Students and Families:

We want you to know that we are working quickly to resolve the financial impact this transition to remote learning will have on a student's unused campus housing, meals and fees for the remainder of the spring semester while taking into account student's financial aid awards.

Students living on campus prior to the COVID-19 crisis will receive a refund or credit for housing fees and meal plan fees (if applicable) based on the proportionate time between when they leave campus housing -- or as cleared by Residence Life -- and the end of the spring term.

Students living off campus with meal plans will receive a refund or credit for the unused portion of their meal plans.

All students will receive prorated refunds or credits for certain other fees for services that have been discounted due to the COVID-19 emergency. The calculation of the amount of the refund or credit is being determined for each of these fees. The fees eligible for a credit/refund include:

- Transportation fee
- Athletics fee
- Recreation and campus life fee
- Student activity fee
- The category of "Other Broad Based Fees" as appropriate and approved annually by SUNY System Administration

As soon as additional information is available, we will update you. Credits or refund approaches will be finalized as soon as possible and certainly before the end of the spring semester. We recognize that this is a difficult time, if you have any questions or a critical financial need please be in contact with the financial aid office.

Sincerely,

John S. Nader

President
